

More offenders brought to justice

The use of a technology system that co-ordinates data across different operational policing processes can reduce crime and disorder and increase the number of offenders brought to justice.

Gloucestershire Constabulary selected the SunGard UNIFI system for just that reason. Crime recording and intelligence, custody, case preparation, tape management, the wanted/warrants process and many others are brought together to form a fully integrated back office system.

Gloucestershire Constabulary

Collaborative working and information sharing

As a force with over 2,000 police officers, police staff and special constables Gloucestershire Constabulary has its own policing challenges as home to celebrity and royal residents as well as host to a number of large sporting events and tourists.

UNIFI is a suite of integrated modules within a single application that provides consistent business processes across the force, helping police workers increase efficiency and provide a better service to the community. Built on a single database, UNIFI streamlines the technical solution, keeping maintenance and support (and therefore costs), to a minimum.

Future proof

As demand and requirements continually evolve and change the ability of UNIFI to integrate with other systems such as the Crown Prosecution Service's CMS and the Magistrate Court's Libra interfaces, were factors that Gloucestershire Constabulary considered when choosing SunGard.

Benefits

- More reliable system
- Increased efficiency – better service to the community
- More offenders brought to justice
- Double keying eliminated, data quality improved and information exchange facilitated

“...this places Gloucestershire at the forefront of technology development which will continue to ensure that the best capability is provided to our people and through them to our communities.”
